Right to Use and Transfer of Source Code in the Event of Insolvency

§1 Right to Use

With the placement of an order, the Client acquires from the Supplier a non-exclusive, non-transferable, irrevocable and unrestricted right to use the software components that the Client has previously purchased licenses for, that are part of Linchpin for Atlassian Confluence, as provided by //SEIBERT/MEDIA on the Atlassian Marketplace at: https://marketplace.atlassian.com/vendors/9093/seibert-media

§2 Applicable Versions

The right of use refers to the most recent versions of the software components delivered under a valid maintenance contract. This does not constitute a legal right to receive ongoing updates and upgrades of the software components. Similarly, there is no right to use any versions of the software components that have not been delivered under a valid maintenance contract.

§3 Events

Both Contracting Parties undertake to notify the other Contracting Party without delay of the following events:

(a) Application for initiation of insolvency or bankruptcy proceedings concerning the assets of the Contracting Party
(b) Entry of the Contracting Party into voluntary liquidation
(c) Insolvency of the Contracting Party

§4 Transfer of the Source Code

Upon the occurrence of one of the events listed under §3, the Supplier undertakes to provide the source code of all software components listed under §1 in a form that enables the Client to extend or adapt the software components themselves or to have them extended or adapted by a third party.
